“Mama’s Teaching Angels How To Sing” Captures Dove Award For Bluegrass Recorded Song Of The Year

NASHVILLE, Tennessee (April 24, 2012) – Almost four years after her home-going, Dottie Rambo was honored with a Dove award for her composition “Mama’s Teaching Angels How To Sing” as recorded by The Isaacs on their project Naturally.

Her grandchildren, Israel and Destiny McGuire, were at the Fox Theatre in Atlanta, Georgia, and received this award on her behalf. Israel shared how much GrandDot loved and admired The Isaacs.
